PROGRAMME

COURSE 1: TECH TOOLS FOR LAWYERS; AI IN LEGAL TECHNOLOGY

Monday, 12 December 2022 | 6 PM to 8 PM (KSA time)

Language: Bilingual; English and Arabic

Part 1: Tech tools for lawyers

Say goodbye to reading countless legal agreements by using AI based contract intelligence tools. Conducting back-to-back negotiations and preparing reports has become much easier with the integration of smart AI tags and contextual search.

The course will guide you through the different types of technology tools currently available, as well as adoption trends among law firms and corporate counsel teams.

Part 2: AI in Legal Technology

Artificial Intelligence does not allow us to create “robot lawyers” just yet, but it helps legal professionals to be more efficient.

Legal professionals weighing the cost and time it takes to get to the facts of any legal matter are increasingly using technology to quickly find key information or evidence.

Artificial Intelligence (AI) has transformed the landscape of legal technology tools by providing speedy insights into large volumes of documents or emails.

Presented by: Hussain Hadi, Head of Publishing & Legal Technology, LexisNexis Middle East

COURSE 2: NAVIGATING THROUGH LEGAL ANALYTICS; ONLINE COURTS AND TECHNOLOGY FOR LITIGATORS/ARBITRATORS

Tuesday, 13 December 2022 | 6 PM to 8 PM (KSA time)

Language: Bilingual; English and Arabic

Part 1: Navigating through Legal Analytics

Legal Analytics tools such as Lex Machina collects, filters and identifies relevant legal information from various legal documents, case records and helps analyzing how a judge has rendered a similar decision and the remedies awarded.

Law firms and lawyers will obtain valuable insight from such legal data to plan case strategies, attract new clients and even predict the case outcome. These tools will help lawyers gain a leverage by allowing them to evaluate their opposing counsel’s experience, client lists and cases won by them.

Part 2: Online courts and technology tools for litigators/arbitrators

The course will cover online courts and the future of justice, as well as tools currently being used to streamline dispute resolution processes including document collection, review and production, as well as the management and transfer of arbitration data

Presented by: Hussain Hadi, Head of Publishing & Legal Technology, LexisNexis Middle East

PROGRAMME

COURSE 3: TECH TOOLS FOR LAWYERS/AI IN LEGAL TECHNOLOGY

Wednesday, 14 December 2022 | 6 PM to 8 PM (KSA time)

Language: Bilingual; English and Arabic

Part 1: Smart Contracts: : Integrating blockchain in the legal sector

Integrating block chain in the legal sector Lawyers can benefit from streamlined and simplified transactional work with the help of blockchain technology. Permanent, accessible, and secure storage of legal documents and contracts will accelerate the legal process and save time on nonbillable administrative work.
